

ASTOR HOUSE HOTEL

SHANGHAI

191

and to New Gardens.

In 1856 he became identified with Rothschild's Bank - which then had a branch in San Francisco and was transferred by that bank to their office in the City of Mexico in 1860. He resided in Mexico, until the revolution against the Emperor Maximilian made it advisable for foreigners to leave the country. He then returned to Scotland, and lived in England until 1873, when he came back to San Francisco, remaining